Jewelry:

When I saw the rich colors and charms I had to make some jewelry. The papers were just right for making "beads". I took a little artistic license with the bracelet though; the flower is really not a bead!

Calendar Magnet:

The gold cardstock was calling out to be the base for this project. Actually I layered two different gold papers. This calendar can be perpetual because both the die cut year banner and mini calendar are adhered with Velcro. Angle cut flowers and my favorite....mulberry paper ring in the New Year!

Wine Bottle Tag:

What hostess would not like getting this as a special treat to ring in the New Year?

Just a simple tag, some ribbon, a few appropriate die cuts and of course a bit of quilling will top off any wine or champagne bottle. Change up the theme for any occasion!

Paper Bead Necklace and Earring Set :

The texture of the gold flecked mulberry paper inspired me to make paper beads out of it. I wanted to use the black necklace cording so I had to roll the beads on a larger 'needle' tool so the bead holes would be large enough. After rolling the beads I embossed them three times in clear embossing powder to give them strength and then I added a few more gold flecks with my gold pen. The charms are from the kit and they were a perfect fit for the necklace and earring set. I still have a few more beads so I will make a bracelet to match! Both my girls want it, so I will have to make another!

Desktop Calendar and Notepad:

This month's kit has a small tear off calendar and I had a project in mind for some post-it's so I decided to combine the two. The holder is made from the gold card stock in the kit and is easily made to fit any size sticky pad. I just measured the sticky pad and added some for a border for a basic size. The calendar sits on three panels cut out of the green, purple and blue shimmery paper in the kit. I alternated the shapes for interest. Next I adhered the calendar onto the center of the panels and quilled some filigree shapes to surround it out of the gold metallic strips in the kit. I added the clear crystals for some bling. For the pad I quilled some tight rolls and added a crystal on top to hold the pad in place. Then for a special touch I added some filigree to each side of the pad. Now all I have to do is to decide whose desk it will sit upon!

January Calendar Page:

The January calendar page had me stumped until I saw the rich jewel tone papers in the kit. As soon as I saw the deep purple I knew it had to become pansies. The calendar page is done in the same 6 X 6 perpetual layout as the previous months. I sponged a green ink onto the edges of the watercolor paper base and calendar popup and then edged them with gold. I punched the pansy petals out of the shimmery purple paper and formed them onto the green snowflake base. I then punched accent flowers out of a blue/gold vellum and added a blue pearl for their centers. I added the pansy leaves and a few quilled leaves for the beautiful paper for the pansies made this month's page a breeze!

Sue

The rich deep jewel tone colors in this month's kit are just beautiful. They shimmer and shine in the light. Pairing them with the wonderful gold papers in the kit you will be able to make priceless projects this month. The sun and moon charms, a tassel, mini calendar, mulberry paper with gold flecks that are also in this kit gave me so many ideas, I could not wait to dive in and create.

Sonya

I love the rich shimmery metallic papers in this month's kit and they are a favorite in many of my projects. The kit also has a mini calendar, a beautiful tassel, that will become a bookmark soon, and some silver charms to make either jewelry or adorn a card for that special dimensional touch. I will be able to use many of the papers and strips in the month to come to add a touch of bling to my projects! I am never disappointed in the kits and always have more than enough to do lots of projects.
