Mini O'Malley

The inspiration for this project came from a New Year's hat that I saw on the Graphic 45 website (you can find the pattern there). I thought that a leprechaun would be proud to wear a hat like that, or at least sit atop one! First I used a piece of black cardstock from my stash to make the hat. Next I added the flowered hat band, a "Luck O' the Irish" banner, and last I added little "Mini O'Malley holding a shamrock on top.

"Recycled" Shamrock Magnet

This magnet started life as a little divider in the refrigerated cinnamon roll can. It lived in between the rolls and the icing, now it lives on the outside of the fridge. I used more die cut circles for the back of the magnet and another to fit inside the magnet. The inside of the magnet is decorated with quilled shamrocks, leaves, and flowers. A smaller die cut dangles below with one of the cute 3-D shamrocks.

These little aluminum containers work great to put a puddle of glue in for quilling. When finished just soak in warm soapy water. They are sturdy enough to use over and over. When no longer needed, they can be re-recycled (is that a word?) You know what I mean!!

Hey that is in keeping with our green theme for this month too!

Ok—I am done!! LOL

Shamrock Bifold Card

A card that opens from the middle was the base for the die cut circles, shamrock, and "Happy St. Patrick's Day" banner. The quilling on the shamrock is accentuated by a little leprechaun stamped image that was colored with Copics. He's peeking around looking for his lucky four leaf clover punches. On the inside is another one of the little stamped leprechauns, a border sticker, and a "Luck" stamp. The yellow cardstock is made with a Martha Stewart punch around the page punch, and tucked in the corner is one of the little green 3-D shamrocks.

Rainbow Awning Card

Both the cute shamrocks and the fabric-like stickers inspired this card. The green scalloped sticker reminded me of the trim on a window awning. The dark green card stock was embossed and then a decorative edge punch was used under the scallop sticker to create the awning. The awning needed a window, and the window needed a view, and rainbows and shamrocks go together, so I put the glittered rainbow behind the acetate-lined window for a surprise when you lift the awning. Inside the card is another smaller awning to lift to see the personalized message.

Garden Arbor Perpetual Calendar

I have seen designs for perpetual calendars using the number blocks and thought the shades of blue strips would look pretty made into a flower arbor for the top. The blocks boxes are inked and stamped and have die cut numbers. The number blocks sit upon two of the three rectangular monthly block boxes. The calendar base is a rectangular tube that holds the third month block when not in use. I used a circle die to cut the top of the arbor and then used another smaller circle die to cut the bottom of the arbor shape, only cutting half of each. I quilled simple, but showy flowers, leaves, and scrolls to adorn the top from the pretty shades of blue strips. I hand fringed the grass from two shades of green card stock for the bottom front. It is a fun and cute calendar that never goes out of date.

Quilled Bracelet

I am hooked on quilled jewelry now and had to try a bracelet.

Using oval filigree jewelry components as the base of the quilled motifs again, I linked seven of them together. I used the navy strips to quill the marquise and teardrop shapes and then gilded them with an 18KT gold pen. I like the heavier weight of these strips as it gives additional stability to the quilling. Beads, crystals, and bugle beads in navy and a peacock shade are set among the quilled shapes. Light and medium blue crystals alternate as centers of the quilling motifs.

February is rollin' in with a bang, lots of luck, and tons of green! Get a head start on St. Pat's Day with the Custom Quilling kit. You will find tons of inspiration in the green, yellow, and blue hues this month. There are shades of green and blue quilling strips with cardstock to match, green glitter glue, border stickers, and the cutest little shamrocks. How can this kit not be lucky?!

This month's kit has lots of inspiration in it with the greens, yellow and blues of the color palette. I love the stickers that have a fabric feel and the fun shamrock embellishments. If you are tired of winter you will love working with the fresh springtime colors while waiting for the snow to melt.

Here are some pictures of earrings I've made. I started out spraying them with clear gloss, which didn't give the sparkle I wanted, so I painted them with glitter glue. Every brand of glitter glue is different and sometimes they made too much glitter, sometimes too little. Then I sprayed with gloss. I also tried clear fingernail polish, but it didn't sparkle enough. Then I had an inspiration and went looking for glittery polish. There are several different kinds out there that do great. Not only do they give it sparkle, but strength as well, so I didn't have to spray the gloss (which caused the husband to complain about the smell every time!) As you might guess, we have a plethora of cats around our place!!!!
